An astonishing share of gun violence in America is driven by domestic violence. More than half of women murdered with guns in the U.S. in 2011 at least 53 percent — were killed by intimate partners or family members. And research by Everytown for Gun Safety establishes that this is also true for mass shootings: in 57 percent of the mass shootings between January 2009 and June 2014, the perpetrator killed an intimate partner or family member.

And guns make it more likely that domestic abuse will turn into murder: When a gun is present in a domestic violence situation, it increases the risk of homicide for women by 500 percent. Over the past 25 years in the U.S., more intimate partner homicides have been committed with guns than with all other weapons combined.

2013 Trends Identified By The Commission

- Native American IPH deaths have declined in the past two years. There hasn't been a Reservation-based death that the Commission is aware of since June 2010. Even so, Native Americans remain victims of intimate partner homicide at a disproportionate rate. While constituting approximately 7% of the state's population, they make up 11% of intimate partner deaths.
- Firearms continue to be the most frequently used weapons.
- The fourth quarter of the year has become the most dangerous for victims. The months of October—December accounted for three of four deaths in 2011 and half of the deaths in 2012.
- All recent deaths took place in Western Montana. The last intimate partner killings east of Billings occurred in 2010.
- Dr. Neil Websdale's concept of "humiliated fury" was evident in three of the four reviews conducted. Further discussion of what the team discovered can be found on page 7.
- In each of these killings, family, friends and/or coworkers were aware of violence within the home, but struggled with how, or whether, to intervene.
- Three of the perpetrators attempted suicide with two completions.
- The majority of children who survive the death of one or both parents receive few, if any, services.
- Alcohol was a significant factor in three of the four incidents reviewed. Those killings took the lives of five individuals

Recommendations 2013

- Provide the final three tribal courts (Blackfeet, Fort Belknap and Rocky Boys) with the capacity for Hope Cards electronic court case management systems and specialized printers.
- It is essential that those who work with victims and their children be trained to develop safety plans. This should be a skill of clergy, teachers, medical professionals, social service providers and criminal justice staff, among others.
- Continue the collaboration and joint trainings between Montana's Department of Justice, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the U.S. Attorney's Office and the MT WY Tribal Judges Association.
- Expand the state's Crime Victim Compensation Program to increase the reimbursement rate for funeral expenses. The $3,500 figure has not been raised since 1995 and its limitation can place a financial burden on families of those killed in intimate partner homicides.
- Identify, train and provide financial support to members of a statewide Native American domestic violence fatality review team. Conduct at least one review of a Reservation-based death this biennium.
- Increase knowledge and use of DOJ's Limited English Proficiency language line services for domestic violence victims.

- Increase training on the Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) study and the effects on children who grow up in violent homes.
- Institute automatic referrals to Child Protective Services and a guardian ad litem or Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) for all children following an IPH.
- Adapt Missoula's bystander sexual assault campaign to domestic violence and expand it statewide.
- Mandate ongoing DV education for law enforcement, making it eligible for POST credit. Currently there is no requirement beyond basic Academy training. Make the training available to all law enforcement personnel – Highway Patrol, game wardens, Division of Criminal Investigation agents, etc.
- Adapt Montana's 24/7 Sobriety Program to arrests for Partner or Family Member Assault (PFMA) that include substance abuse. This would require that those free on bond and/or serving a suspended sentence be tested daily for alcohol use. A positive test would revoke the bond or suspended sentence and return the offender to jail.
