How do I use the new Exceptional Clearance code C, In Custody of Other Jurisdiction?

Each agency has an option on how to use this code.

Your agency can:

1. wait until the individual is returned and clear the incident by arrest, or
2. clear the incident immediately by using the C, In Custody of Other Jurisdiction exceptional clearance code.

For example, an individual is being held at a detention center elsewhere and your agency wants to bring him/her back to your jurisdiction for previously committed crimes. A detainer is placed on him/her until the individual is released from the agency currently holding the individual.

It is your agency's decision on which option to report:

1. show a physical arrest when you gain custody of the arrestee, or
2. use the exceptional clearance code C, In Custody of Other Jurisdiction prior to gaining custody of the arrestee.
